Customs Collector Believes Richmond City Attorney Holds That Department Will Remain in Million Dollar Class, Despite War Conditions. South American Trade Increasing.

Trade conditions in Virginia, as seen through the eyes of Collector Norman larly bright. Mr. Hamilton arrived here yesterday from Norfolk, where his duties have been heavy on account of the peculiar conditions arising from the European war situation. He is charged with the important and resonsible duty of enforcing neutrality in Virginia, and has found it necessary to remain continuously at Norfolk and Newport News, where questions incident to the arrival and departure of foreign merchant vessels bring up thotty questions daily. Speaking of conditions in the district under his supervision, Mr. I amilton said yesterday with the fine condition in which he found the Richmond office, and highly commended Deputy Collector W. Gay Smith and the entire force. Mr. Hamilton said that, even with the general falling off of import business, incident to the war conditions in Europe, the continued collections at Richmond were most satisfactory, and that it would probably remain in the million-dollar class of larly bright. Mr. Hamilton arrived Department will at all times and seaisfactory, and that it would probably remain in the million-dollar class of ports during this fiscal year. The col-lections for the first four months in lleve that this ratio will be continued. IMMENSE SHIPMEN'TS

Collector Hamilton said there are just now fewer foreign ships in Hamp-ton Roads than there were immedi-ately after the outbreak of the European trouble, but the outlook is good for a great export business from Norpean trouble, but the outlook is good for a great export business from Nor-folk and Newport News in the very near future. The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway is preparing to send for-ward great quantities of grain from Newport News, and there is now much cotton and lumber on storage at Nor-folk awaiting shipment. Mr. Hamilfolk awalting shipment. Mr. Hamil-ton said a big ship finished loading at Norfolk and Newport News this week for England with a half-million-dollar general cargo; this was in the usual and ordinary course of trade. The Norfolk and Western and Virginian Railways at Norfolk and the Chesa-peake and Ohio Railway at Newport News have on hand unusually large quantities of bituminous coal ready for dumpage into foreign bottoms for export as soon as ships are available. A large amount of coal, Mr. Hamilton said, is, of course, being sent out all the while from these piers, but the coal business during November was not as large as in September.

REGARDING OUTLOOK In discussing business generally, Collector Hamilton was most optimistic. He said every indication pointed to an early period of great prosperity. the opening up of the Panama Canal, with local cargoes. One or two Norfolk firms, said the collector, now have en route to Hampton Roads from the Pacific Coast large consignments of canned goods for distribution from Norfolk. South American fruit is also being brought into Hampton Roads to some little extent following the Panama Canal opening, and Mr. Hamilton believes that Norfolk, as a result of such trade,—is destined to become a great depot for the importation and distribution of tropical fruits.

The Hampton Roads cittes, he said,

formation:

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, there were a total of 466 ships to enter Hampton Hoads ports—Norfolk and Newport News—from foreign ports, bringing Imports valued at approximately $6,219,830. Of these, 286 came into Norfolk, bringing imports valued at approximately $2,283,559, and 150 into Newport News, bringing imports valued at approximately $3,-331,271.

During the same period a total of

During the same period a total of 1,756 vessels cleared from Norfolk and Newport News with cargoes for foreign ports, of which number 1,198 left the port of Norfolk with exports valued at $19,533,855; and 558 left the port of Newport News with exports valued at $5.628,304.

FIRE BOARD HAS BROAD CHARTER POWERS In his opinion, rendered to the Fire Board yesterday, City Attorney Pollard directed attention to the broad general powers of the Fire Board, conferring upon it by the Legislature through the city charter, advising the board that it should be controlled, in the matter under consideration, by the spirit rather than by the strict letter of the section of the annexation decree bearing upon the controversy, "Should the accident have happened to the fire engine of Ginter Park," said
